does not make a difference” in treating a patient's cancer people with anorexia are underweight information gained as a part of the patient-physician relationship, including disclosure of possible criminal acts, remains confidential americans are uninsured for what is likely to be a costly eventuality in their lives